White Noise (novel) - Wikipedia

White Noise is Don DeLillo's eighth novel and was written in 1985. Set at a Midwestern college, it follows a year in the life of Jack Gladney, a professor who has made his name by pioneering the field of Hitler studies. He is currently married to his fifth wife and is bringing up a brood of children and stepchildren with said wife, Babette.

White Noise by Don DeLillo - Goodreads

White Noise, on the surface, is DeLillo's most orthodox novel. First-person narrative. Straightforward chronology. Mainly domestic setting. Lots of humour. The novel's white noise is the endless stream of (mis)information we are subjected to in our lives. Data has a viral role in this novel. Data that rarely translates into wisdom.

The kindest response to Don DeLillo's new novel, "The Silence," may be suggested by its title. But this is the author of such modern classics as "White Noise," "Libra" and "Underworld," so attention must be paid. "The Silence" is one of DeLillo's short, curious novels, possibly the shortest and the curiousest.

The Silence by Don DeLillo

I know Don DeLillo is not one to gleam in joy for the cameras or isn't necessarily all that open to discussing the details and intricacies of his work, but I sense that the general themes of White Noise were manifestations of an extremely hypochondriac man desperately trying to relieve himself from cumbersome questions that revolve around death and consciousness.
