Question: "Why is being a good person not enough to get you into heaven?" Answer: If you ask most people what you have to do to get into heaven (assuming they believe in heaven or an afterlife), the overwhelming response will be some form of "be a good person." Most, if not all, religions and worldly philosophies are ethically based.

"Why can't I just be a good person?" It is amazing to think that some people actually believe they are good enough to get into heaven. Perhaps it is because we read so much bad news in the papers about others that we are quick to conclude that by comparison we are superior, and so deserving of a place in eternity.

It means you understand how much you do need, how small you are in this great grand universe — and that you don't have to be even one inch bigger than that. You are enough absolutely does not mean that you never need help. When you know you are enough, it's easier to ask for help. It's easier to admit your weaknesses.

What It Means to Be Enough - melissacamarawilkins.com

In some professions or situations, "good enough" is pretty close to perfection. For example, a good enough operation by a brain surgeon is going to have to be damn good in order to minimise the risk of disaster.

» Being good enough

If people truly want to be good enough, then they should live strictly by the Law as given by God in the first five books of the Bible. This is where God has laid out what it takes to be good enough. After all, it is God who will ultimately decide who enters into the gates of Heaven. People believe in the good enough approach are actually doing themselves a great disservice. First, their belief has no sound scriptural basis. This thinking puts the individual above God.
